These words, these numbers, these ideas,
All-important, all necessary, and all useful.
For the past twelve years, learning has been my job.
The classroom has been my office,
The teacher has been my boss,
and the knowledge has been my paycheck.
I have to take it seriously;
I have to be responsible.

A Message from Headmaster Fung

Dear Class of 2002,

A yearbook provides a historical record of the deeds of the students and faculty members of a high school: their accomplishments, their joys and, sometimes, their sorrows. This past year we have certainly accomplished much: the Edgerly leadership Award for being one of Massachusetts's most improved schools in MCAS; the highest number of Boston University scholars among the district high schools; a third, consecutive state championship in basketball; and a Super Bowl championship in football. Yet it is also a year in which all of us, after September 11, had to face the sorrow of the loss of innocence: the world is no longer the safe and secure world that we used to know.

But a yearbook is also the place where we look forward. Under our pictures, our friend made their predictions of us: most likely to make the Celtics team, first to become a rock star, and so on. Sometimes we also stated our aspirations: by thirty we would be millionaires. In doing so, we said something about ourselves, so that years from now when people flip through these pages, they would know that once upon a time we all had hopes and dreams.

So I must once again remind you what these four years are about. Your teachers and I want you to be an educated person: one who is literate, with a sense of the past, a vision for the future, an appreciation of the arts, a feeling for the suffering of the less fortunate, a commitment to decency and honesty, and a willingness to serve the community.

We try to instill in you a love of learning and a passion for excellence. We expect you to be ind ependent learners and achievers all your lives. We want you to be able to appreciate the fruits of human achievements. Above all else, we hope that you would never be indifferent to human suffering and possess the moral fortitude to challenge inhumane deeds in adverse times.

Years from now, when you too flip through these pages to reminisce about your younger days, I hope that you can say, yes, I have learned all that and I live it!

To the Faculty
Many thanks from the Class of 2002

Teachers are the sculptors of young lives.
How fortunate we are to have been shaped by you!
A year in your class taught me how study,
No longer lost in thoughts that I find new,
Knowing now the paths each thought derives.
Your love and strong solicitude embody
Other virtues we have tried on, too.
Under your good guidance hope survives.

Teachers dwell in some far-distant heaven,
Even the most plain and down-to-earth.
All your expertise and dedication
Captures our naive imagination,
Heightening the aura of your worth.
Eventually, that youthful admiration
Returns as we embrace what you have given,
Serving as the seed of our rebirth.

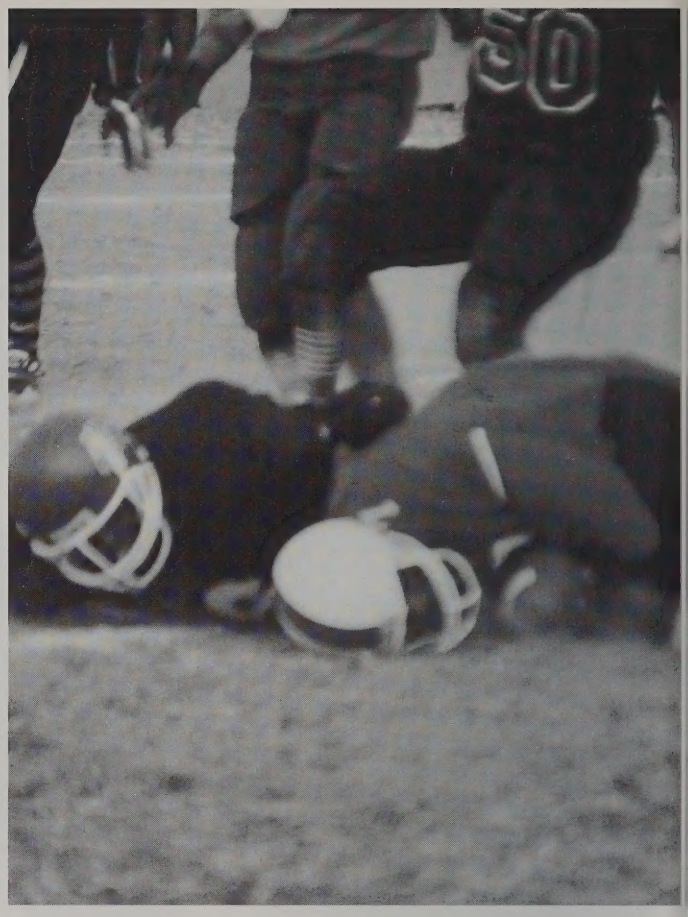
T. Carroll takes the hard hit!



2001-2002

Superbowl Champs

The journey for Charlestown began in the summer. It was a long and difficult August, not too many people were showing up. Some would come half of the week, others would show up once a week. Even when school started the numbers were still insufficent. A few of the players were having trouble with the coaches, all this showed the team was not ready for the Superbowl. It wasn't until about halfway through the season when the coaches really cracked down on us and the team pulled togather, the team understood what we had to do to get to the Superbowl, which meant everyone had to attend practice, everyone had to help out during practice, and everyone had to put everything they learned and all of their will into the games. All the players were starting to cooperate with each other and we were finally on the road to the Superbowl. The season, all in all, was fun and a real good experience. I made friends with the team (as well as everyone else did), learned a lot from the coaches (on and off the field), and best of all we beat South Shore in the Superbowl.

One in a Million

One in a Million

In Aaliyah's song "One In A Million," she refers to love, and love is all we have received at Charlestown High School.

For us, this time only comes once in a lifetime.
But our memories last a lifetime. C-Town brought us happiness and laughter, but today as we stand and give ourselves to the world, all we have are tears.
We have become tomorrow's future. The future brought up by a faculty of love. We dreaded hearing Val's voice, or some of our other teachers who motivated us to move on.
Today, we want to thank you because we have moved on.
As we collect our diplomas, look at us as YOUR diplomas, for you are graduating too. Because you are
"One In A Million" in our hearts.

~ Xiomara Alicea

There was a fence with spaces you
Could look through if you wanted to.
An architect who saw this thing
Stood there one summer evening,
Took out the spaces with great care
And built a castle in the air.
